

ASPECT IR INSPECTION & REPORTING SOFTWARE

Moving to Aspect software has been a great transition for our company.

For 17 years we have used several software programs to generate IR inspection reports. An arduous time-consuming process our Thermographers never looked forward to. Aspect software has dramatically changed that feeling for our team.

We now look forward to importing our images, running our reports and being able to deliver them to our customers within minutes instead of hours or even days.

Aspect has been by far the smoothest transition to new software we have ever experienced and the easiest learning curve of any software we have ever used. We now use Aspect in the field on IR inspections and are able to generate superior reports in a fraction of the time it once took. What a dramatic difference!

I firmly believe this software will be around for a long time to come and is without question the best choice for the professional thermographer available today.

Aspect is very intuitive, easy to use and it functions in a manner which most people are familiar with and the team at Exsero Software is always looking for feedback, updates are flawlessly delivered regularly and the tech support and customer service is great.

Aspect definitely gets 2 thumbs' up from our group!
